To the Puerto Rican Community in Puerto Rico:

With a saddened heart, but with all the solidarity of the Boricua College community, we join our Puerto Rican brothers and sisters in the aftermath of the devastating tragedy caused by Hurricane Maria. Our prayers and positive energy are directed to all the people in Puerto Rico. As we have always provided, your brothers and sisters in the city of New York assure you our emotional, professional and economic support.

The indivisible cultural union that connects all of us is now stronger during these trying times. We trust that with the herculean efforts of federal, state, cities, for profit and not for profit organizations and even more importantly by volunteers, we will be able to return to a better place. We know this because Boricua College's tenacity and success derives from the Puerto Rican culture and spirit of rising back from all misfortunes.

This struggle will continue for a long time. When the cameras leave Puerto Rico our Puerto Rican brothers and sisters everywhere will be able to look back with pride on how a shared effort succeeded in creating a better Puerto Rico. We are all one people, our bond knows no bounds. It is going to take time, but it is going to happen.

Our land is sacred and forever belongs to us.
